Washington State Patrol Asked To Conduct Investigation of Possible Criminal Misconduct in Actions of Catherine Woodard

The Washington State Patrol has been asked to conduct a review to determine if there was any criminal misconduct in the actions of Catherine Woodard.

The State Patrol has begun its investigation of fact finding. Three detectives have been assigned to the case. While we cannot put a timeframe on how long it will take, we can say the review is being handled with a sense of urgency and will be completed in an expedient manner.

If the public has any information that may benefit the investigation, the State Patrol requests that they call Captain Brian Ursino, commander, Criminal Investigation Division, at (360) 753-0315, extension 159.
